

The Parish Library

Serving as the parish librarian at Calvary Episcopal Church is a pleasure and a privilege. It is also a responsibility I take seriously. In this role, I am the steward of a communal resource.

Since becoming the parish librarian early last year, I have organized the books and presided over the expansion of the library. Some people have expressed their intention to donate volumes, and I have accepted on behalf of the parish. The library has expanded into the corridor, where shelves exist. I have expanded the available shelf space by removing the lower doors in the main part of the library. I have resolved to make the most efficient use of the extant shelf space first, then, if necessary, to consult the parish leadership about adding shelf space.

If people keep donating books, expanding shelf space may be necessary. I welcome that, should the circumstance arise.

If anyone has a question about my organizational system, I will welcome that inquiry.
